FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: DEMOCRACY SAUSAGE INSPECTIONS ROLLING OUT FOR UP-COMING CANNING BY-ELECTION

Sausage inspectors from election sausage mapping team Democracy Sausage will be in the field on Saturday 19 September in Canning, conducting spot inspections at polling places across the electorate.

After some meaty coverage of this year's New South Wales and Queensland State elections, the Western Australian-based team will be on the road, cooking up live Twitter reviews of fundraising efforts in the hotly-contested Federal seat.

While sausage sizzles and cakes stalls are a mainstay of the Australian electoral scene, raising much-needed funding for schools and community groups, by-elections don't always serve up a sausagefest. Nonetheless, Democracy Sausage hopes to see volunteer fundraisers firing up in Canning this month to bring home the bacon.

Annette Tyler, a Senior Sausage Analyst at Democracy Sausage, encourages voters to snag a banger if they are lucky enough to have a stall at their booth. "Sizzles and bake sales are the bread and butter of local fundraising. The opportunity to bring in some extra funding on Election Day is the icing on the cake for these hard-working volunteers."
